

Organic Ocean Kelp

Organic Ocean Kelp from VRG Organics is distinguished by being one of the only kelp products currently available that is sustainable harvested, dried, milled and bagged following the organic standards of QAI (Quality Assurance International) in the U.S., and TUN, the local Icelandic certifier. You will be hard pressed to find a cleaner, higher quality kelp supplement than this. Packaged in resealable zip-top mylar bags to maintain freshness.

This pure supplement comes from the icy waters of Northwestern Iceland where the kelp grows in a clean environment rich in alluvial minerals. It is harvested with the strictest international standards for sustainability, separation of raw material, traceability of products and contamination control at all stages of the production process.

Ocean Kelp is dried at a uniform low temperature by hot geothermal water fed through heat exchangers. This procedure ensures all the minerals and organic substances are preserved -- preventing surface oxidation and browning of the meal as often seen in oil, coal-dried or sun-dried product. The use of the geothermal water also means the production process is very environmentally friendly.

Ocean Kelp contains Laminaria digitata, an expensive kelp generally not included in pet kelp supplements. According to the National Cancer Institute's website Laminaria digitata "may have immunostimulatory and anticancer effects."

Kelp is a rich source of 12 natural vitamins and over 60 trace minerals including essential trace elements for balanced growth, health and reproduction.
